Are we there yet?

The new mileage-based exit numbering system on Pennsylvania interstates will help motorists answer the age-old question (usually heard from little voices in the back seat)....are we there yet?

The new system allows motorists to easily calculate distances between interstate exits. That enables customers to better plan their trips, to anticipate how much farther they can safely drive or know when they'd like to end their trip for the day.

A stop at any of PennDOT's Pennsylvania Welcome Centers and selected rest areas will help too. Here you'll find the AccuWeather traveler information system alerting you to conditions ahead. With the new exit numbering system, you'll know that your destination is, say, 120 miles to the north. PennDOT's new system provides you with more information to plan that trip across the mountains or across the state.

Additional copies of this booklet are available by phoning PennDOT's Office of Communications and Customer Relations at (717)783-5692.

Motorists who travel from state to state, and the tourism industry as a whole, have often asked why Pennsylvania's interstate exit signing system is, well, different from the rest. The vast majority of states sign their exits using a mileage-based system. For example, if you are on Interstate 81 and 10 miles from the southern border of the state, the exit is signed as exit 10. An exit 15 miles from the border is signed as exit 15, and so on.

PennDOT will adopt the new mileage-based system beginning in April 2001.

All signs will include both the old and the new exit numbers for a period of at least two years. This will enable motorists to become familiar with the mileage-based system. Numbering will increase from south to north, and form west to east.

USE THIS KEY TO HELP NAVIGATE
THE EXIT RENUMBERING CHARTS PROVIDED

Remember that the mileage-based system signs exits from south to north, and west to east.

For example, Interstate 81 is a south/north route. Exit 1 is one mile from the southern border of the state. The charts provided take you through PennDOT's 11 engineering districts. A green bar to the left of each chart shows PennDOT-maintained interstates and indicates which enginerring district is responsible for signing the roadway for that exit.

Using the Interstate 81 example again, the chart notes that exit 1 is in PennDOT's District 8 whereas exit 104 is in District 5. The chart on page 4 and the map on page 5 shows where the PennDOT engineering districts are located and where you can call for specific information or with questions on exits in each district.

For all questions related to exit renumbering on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, please contact the
