Rabochy y Soldat published an edition, (no.8, October 25 (November 7, in the Western calendar) announcing the overthrow of the Provisional Government and reporting on the meeting held at 10:00 AM, Oct 25, of the Revolutionary Military Committee. (Source: Lenin selected writings as reproduced at the Marxist Internet Archives). Other sources (including John Reed's "Ten days that shook the world") mentions the publication of both, Rabochi Put, the official Bolshevik newspaper, later to become Pravda, and later in the day of Rabochy y Soldat. Yet other sources say Rabochy y Soldat ended publication in August 10, 1917 after 16 issues. Nevertheless, the newspaper might have reappeared to report about the success of the revolution since it had been closed by order of the Provisional Government. Such a 25th October edition seems to exist.*

Izvestia (no. 207) of October 26 (November 8 in the western calendar) published the resolution of the previous' day meeting of the Petrograd Soviet of Workers' and Soldiers' Deputies hailing "the victorious revolution of the proletariat". The meeting opened at 2.35 p.m. on October 25 (November 7) and heard a report of the Revolutionary Committee on the overthrow of the Provisional Government and the triumph of the revolution.*

German troops entered Paris on June 14th after the signing of a cease-fire at 07:30. No papers were published that day in Paris. (See Le Matin of June 17)

"Aux aurores du 14 juin 1940, deux camions chargés de soldats allemands et quelques motocyclettes entrent par la Porte de la Villette dans Paris, déclaré "ville ouverte". À 5 h 35, des troupes vert-de-gris sont aperçues descendant l'avenue de Flandre en direction des gares du Nord et de l'Est. Une heure plus tard, les Allemands sont aux Invalides. À 7 h 30, place de la Concorde, le général von Stunitz descend de voiture et s'engouffre dans l'Hôtel de Crillon. C'est le nouveau commandant militaire de la région parisienne.

Dans la matinée, un drapeau géant à croix gammée flotte sous l'Arc-de-Triomphe (il sera retiré dans la soirée, après protestation des conseillers municipaux), le premier défilé des troupes occupantes a lieu sur les Champs-Élysées". (Yahoo questions/reponses)
